Graduate Program Updates (From FoGS)

Graduation Reminders

Friday, April 20, 2012
- Deadline for graduate programs to notify the Faculty of Graduate Studies that all requirements (including major papers) have been met for non-thesis master's degrees for May graduation.
- Deadline for submission to the Faculty of Graduate Studies of final master's theses and doctoral dissertations for May graduation.

Graduation information can be found at the following link: http://www.grad.ubc.ca/currentstudents/graduation/applying-graduate

Thursday, May 10
- Review of Spring graduation list after the scheduled Grad Council meeting.
- Students can check whether or not their degrees have been approved for graduation through the Student Service Center https://ssc.adm.ubc.ca after May 10. For students planning to attend the graduation ceremonies, it is highly recommended that they check whether or not their degrees have been approved for graduation before attending the ceremony.

May 23, 24, 25 and May 28, 29, 30
- Spring convocations at the Chan Centre: convocation schedule and other graduation info are available at http://www.graduation.ubc.ca/ubc-vancouver/
- Enrolment Services will email gown and tickets information to students on behalf of the Ceremonies & Events office to students who have indicated on their graduation application that they plan to attend the convocation ceremony.

New in Doctoral Exams

Pilot Project: The Doctoral Exams Review Team met on June 2, 2011 and determined to revise procedure in order to increase the amount of contact Supervisors have with External Examiners. This proposed change in chain of contact will take place this spring.

What will be changing?
Supervisors will have earlier knowledge of the External Examiner. Supervisors will have the option of following up the Faculty of Graduate Studies’ invitation to the External Examiner with relevant information such as an abstract or invitation to attend.

How will it work?
Supervisors should list External Examiner nominees in order of preference on the nomination form. An invitation will then be sent to one External Examiner nominee from the Faculty of Graduate Studies. Shortly after the invitation is sent, the Research Supervisor will be notified and invited to follow up if s/he thinks a follow-up email would be relevant to the External Examiner’s decision about whether or not to accept the invitation.

New Pass/Fail Policy

On November 10th, 2011 a change to UBC’s Final Doctoral Exam policy was discussed and ratified by the Graduate Council. This change has now been in effect for defences since January 1, 2012.

What changed?
A candidate will pass his/her defence not by a simple majority, but by a near unanimous majority. All or all but one of the examining committee members must recommend the same course of action to the Dean of Graduate Studies. If two examiners dissent, the Dean or appropriate Associate Dean shall promptly confer with the examining committee before a final decision is made. These changes will be reflected in the Exam Instructions and Chair Report Form, both of which can be found at: http://www.grad.ubc.ca/current-students/finaldoctoral-exam/doctoral-examination-final-oralexamination

Announcements

The Faculty of Arts online magazine features a great interview with Shaylih Muehlmann concerning her research on the local impacts of drug trafficking in northern Mexico. Check it out! http://wire.arts.ubc.ca/ (story one)

An additional 2 out of the 5 stories are about the recent acquisitions at the MOA. http://wire.arts.ubc.ca/ (story two and four)

Sacha Wilke, AGSA Talk Series Coordinator: The AGSA would like to thank everyone who made the AGSA Talk Series such a hit this year. We had 20 presenters ranging from first year graduate students to the head of the department which have showcased the diversity of interests, dedication, and talent that have been brought together in this department. Thank you to everyone who brought in delicious treats, and most importantly thank you to everyone who came out and supported this series, we hope it continues in the future.

Please welcome the new Anthropology Student Association (ASA) co-presidents for the 2012-2013 year:
Nicole Aleong - 2nd year anthropology major, minoring in biology
Michele Morucci - 3rd year doing a double major in anthropology and economics
The ASA is also hosting our last event: Undergraduate Teaching Award. This is a popular event for both faculty and students. Here is the Facebook event with the link to survey monkey -- http://www.facebook.com/events/140819286044951/

Upcoming Field Schools

ANTH 409A(001): Immigrant Vancouver Ethnographic Field School (IVEFS), cross-listed with Soci 495 (001)

As a fieldwork-based course, IVEFS will train students how to conduct in-depth, community-based research on the social, political, cultural and economic lives of Vancouverites, drawing on immigrant experiences and issues. By immersing themselves in qualitative research, students will gain valuable experience linking hands-on research in the classroom to theoretical paradigms related to the study of migration, place-making, global diasporas and multicultural communities. Students will be placed in a local Neighbourhood House that works directly with immigrant communities. Students will develop a final project based on their experiences in the field.

ANTH 306 (921): Summer Field Training in Archaeology in Anyang, China

This summer archaeological training will be held in Anyang, China, a UNESCO world heritage site. Anyang is the modern city where the last capital of Shang civilization, the earliest literate civilization in East Asia, was located. In addition to active participation and involvement in ongoing archaeological excavation, this summer field training will have a focus on learning ancient technologies and material culture through actual manufacture and examination of a range of artifacts, particularly ceramics, stones, jades, and bronzes. An introduction to Shang archaeology will be also lectured so that students will obtain a basic understanding of archaeological study of Shang civilization.

Anth 306 (951): Coastal Field Archaeology, Huu ay aht Territory, Barkley Sound, BC

In partnership with the Huu-ay-aht First Nation, this course will introduce students to coastal field archaeology. Students will participate in field trips to a variety of archaeological sites; attend lectures on indigenous history, archaeological theory, pale environment, and the historical ecology of the west coast of Vancouver Island; participate in fieldwork; and, analyze archaeological samples in a lab-based setting. Students will be responsible for writing up an aspect of the archaeological work, the results of which will be shared with the Huu-ay-aht First Nation.

ANTH Special Events and Moments in March

On March 8, 2012, students in Dr. Millie Creighton's Art, Aesthetics, and Anthropology (Anth 331) held class at UBC's Nitobe Japanese Garden for their studio/lab class within the Japanese Tea House (called Ichiboan) where they participated in a full-fledged Japanese Tea Ceremony. It is one of the rare occasions during which students can enter the Japanese Tea House itself rather than just the garden, and participate directly in this culturally embedded aesthetic form. Pictured left to right: Kalila Wilkinson, Garret Bouhuyzen-Wenger, Vanessa Kong, Christine (Suzanne) Jackson, Adrian Winter, Juliette Funck, Mairin Taylor, Clare van Norden, Haven Giannasio, Melissa Schmadl, Leah Likes, James Ban.

On March 20, 2012, Dr. Toshiyuki Tanaka, from the Hiroshima Peace Institute (of Hiroshima City University) gave special lectures on the atomic bombings of Japan, the history of bombing civilians, and artwork addressing such issues, and also performed on the shakuhachi (Japanese bamboo flute) in Dr. Millie Creighton's Art, Aesthetics and Anthropology (Anth 331) and Japanese Culture and Society (Anth 315) classes in conjunction with the recently finished ‘hiroshima’ exhibit at the Museum of Anthropology (MOA).

Tug of war between Anthropologists and Archaeologists, the winners go to... the Archaeologists!
ANTH Special Events and Moments in March

On March 2nd and 3rd, over 60 scholars from UBC and around western Canada and the United States attended the UBC Anthropology Graduate Conference "Culture and Change: Towards a Dynamic Anthropology" held in the ANSO building and sponsored by the Department of Anthropology with co-sponsorship from the Museum of Anthropology. The conference featured nine panels organized around topics within archaeology, museum anthropology, and sociocultural anthropology, along with a special opening night film and performance panel. The keynote address was delivered in MOA's Michael Ames Theatre by Dr. Yongming Zhou of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, on "Cultural Resilience: Religious Life of the Chinese in Prato, Italy." The first-year graduate cohort sincerely thanks the Department, MOA, and all presenters and faculty discussants for their participation and support! -- Clayton Whitt

EXHIBITIONS
Kesu’: The Art and Life of Doug Cranmer -- March 17-September 3, 2012
The exhibit shows a wide range of Doug’s artistic works in two and three dimensions in wood and paint, from totem poles, a canoe, masks, bentwood boxes, bowls, and prints, to his important “Abstract series” of paintings on mahogany plywood. Works and words by his students are also included in the exhibit, which is organized as a series of overlapping modules that reflect different aspects of the artist’s life and work. Dr. Jennifer Kramer, MOA Curator, Pacific Northwest, and Assistant Professor of Anthropology at UBC, curated the exhibit, and authored the accompanying book, which is available in the MOA Shop. Components of the exhibition will travel to both Campbell River and Alert Bay after the show closes at MOA in September.

Forest One – March 20-May 27, 2012
The Great Hall: gallery, performance space, parking lot. Yes, parking lot! For about two months this spring, Annie Ross’ amazing Forest One – a full-size, 1956 Nash Metropolitan automobile that the artist has wrapped, twined, and plaited with cedar-bark and other reclaimed materials – will be displayed here, in all its woven glory. Using bark salvaged from clear-cut urban forests, Dr. Ross, a weaver and Assistant Professor in First Nations Studies at Simon Fraser University, completely transformed the car inside and out. Forest One speaks of colonization, urban sprawl, trash, and remediating the urban landscape through acts of salvage.

PUBLIC PROGRAMS
Sunday Artist Talks: Doug Cranmer influenced a generation of First Nations artists. To honour his legacy, five artists he inspired will speak about his impact on their work. All talks are free with regular MOA admission.

Richard Sumner: Sunday, April 15, 1:00 pm
Meghann O’Brien: Sunday, April 22, 1:00 pm
Bruce Alfred & Wayne Alfred: Sunday, April 29, 1:00 pm
